Cambs & Hunts news

The England Camrose team, including Chris Jagger, won the Home International Series. Paul Fegarty and Catherine Curtis won the Premier Grand Masters Pairs. David Kendrick won the National Swiss Teams. Rod & Sue Oakford finished 2nd in the Portland Pairs. Marion & Trevor King won the EBU Stratified Pairs Monday event.

The County Pairs was won by Jim Deacon & Robert Miller. The County Individual was won by Malcolm Anderson. The Novice Pairs was won by Susan Smyth & David Mayer. The Swiss Pairs was won by Mike Seaver & Simon Barb. The County Teams was won by Catherine & Chris Jagger, Jonathan Mestel & Julian Wightwick. The County Plate was won by Tom Rainforth, David Collier, David Faria, Kyle Lam, Tommy Brass & Pete Ford. Ely 1 (captained by Peter Burrows) won the League.

With sadness we report the death of Bernard Buckley, a long-term member of the Thursday Club and former County Secretary.

In this issue...

Chris Jagger regales us with tales from his Camrose match and another strange situation he found himself in. Aunt Agony answers the query from Sheila Parker, writing from Yorkshire, and we follow-up on last issue's play problem. There's also the usual round-up of results from national and county competitions and news from around the clubs.

Camrose Speedball by Chris Jagger

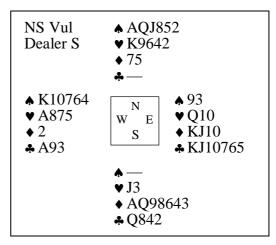

This year's Camrose was held over two weekends, with the Forrester team representing England at the first weekend, and notching up a substantial lead, and the Hinden team (Hinden, Osborne, Allerton, Townsend, Pagan and myself), turning up in East Kilbride just outside Glasgow for the second weekend.

A bucket load of imps vanished in the first set, at which point the captain reminded us of our primary aim: to get a higher score than England had scored on the first weekend. Secondary aims were to win each of the five head-to-head matches against the other home nations, and of course to win overall. This last aim would almost certainly be ensured if we achieved the primary aim – but it seemed to be far more important to our captain that we beat our own teammate from the first weekend – that man Forrester!

Mr Pagan and I were sent in to bat in the second half of the Northern Ireland match, and I can assure you it was more like a Twenty-Twenty match than a test match. Play naturally goes more slowly with screens (a large screen being placed across the table to prevent you from seeing partner - a device that not only stops you unwittingly picking up nuances from partner's face, but also gives the pleasure of being able to criticise him mercilessly without him being aware of it), and with only two hours and five minutes, there is not really that much time. My partner is not renowned for his speed of play, so I was faced with the task of playing at 90 mph in order to avoid some severe time penalties.

A key board was against Wales: You hold ♠93 ♥Q10 ♦KJ10 ♠KJ10765, and the bidding starts 3♣-X-P-3NT, P-P-4♦ to you. Opponents are vulnerable and you are not. My partner doubled – an action which got a lot of sympathy, but not a lot of success as it could not be beaten:

I led a trump, declarer won and made the key play of a low heart. There was nothing I could do. If I ducked it, declarer would win, pitch a heart on the ♠A, and run the ♠Q to my King, by now having ten tricks. If I rose, he now had the ♠A as well as the ♥K9, coming to ten tricks also.

I think the long-term winner is to pass 4D. Opponents generally have a reason for competing at unfavourable, and the worst that is likely to happen is that opponents will score -200 and you lose 5 imps against your game.

More success came on this hand:

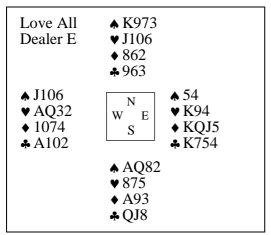

N (Ian) E S (Chris) W
P
$$1 \checkmark 2 \checkmark 4 \checkmark$$
 $5 \checkmark \text{All Pass}$

North has a marginal 5 bid, which could be very wrong if partner has a singleton heart. However it is clear to bid, not least as even when it is wrong opponents may well not be in a position to double.

A heart was led, which I won and then I ruffed a heart. It looks like a matter of leading up to the $ext{-}Q$ and then back to the $ext{-}10$ and hoping that there is only one spade loser.

However, you can make life slightly hard for opponents: I tried a club off the dummy. West rose with the ♣A, and found his partner had an even number of clubs. He was worried I might have ♣K10x, in which case he would need to cash the spades before they went away on the fourth club.

On this layout, a spade switch was catastrophic – it went ♠10-J-Q. (I kept the two concealed in case the spades happened to be 5-1 when it might help to hide the position.)

This hand saw some good play by team-mates and poor play by our opponents. Osborne played in 2NT by East, receiving the Q lead. In actual fact with both hearts and clubs splitting he could have won in hand, taken the club finesse and made the first eight tricks.

However, that was unlikely, so it seemed timeXfor a bit of deception. He won the first trick with the ♣A in dummy, before playing a diamond to the King and Ace. South thought his partner had the ♣K, as otherwise why would declarer win in dummy, giving up on the club position? So he played the ♣J, and now declarer wrapped up 11 tricks.

In our room, West alighted in 3♥, after South had made a takeout double of 1♦. The defence started with two rounds of spades, followed by the ♣9 switch. Declarer won with the King and tried the ♦K, ducked, followed by two more diamonds, taken with the Ace. A third spade was played, ruffed in dummy. Declarer cashed the A, followed by Ace and King of trumps, ending in dummy. He now played the fourth diamond, ruffed by South. Declarer pitched his losing club, as did North. South now played his club, and North got a trump promotion, beating the contract by a trick. This line would have worked if South had had 4 hearts. as suggested by the takeout double.

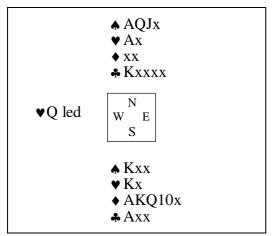

Of course, with the play as it was, it seemed that South had four spades and three diamonds, and now it is much more likely that South has three hearts only. Declarer should have won the first club in hand, and now he can combine his chances, making the contract whether North has three of four hearts, as he can draw trumps and use the late entry in clubs to cash the last diamond.

By the time the dust had settled, we managed to secure the five wins, and crucially rack up 101 VPs, just beating the England total from the first weekend of 99 VPs. A magnificent banquet with finest Scottish hospitality ensued to round off a very satisfactory weekend.

Play problem follow-up

Here's the answer to the play problem posed in the last issue:

You are in 6NT, playing teams. Opponents have been silent throughout. LHO leads ♥Q. Plan the play.

This is one of those 'easy' hands where most of the time you will make the contract without much thought, and you don't want to spend a lot of time planning the play only to find everything is sitting right for you.

My initial thought was to win in dummy and cash the A. Then cross to dummy with a spade and lead another diamond up. If East follows, then whether or not the finesse wins, you have 12 tricks.

If East shows out, rise with the ◆K and play three rounds of clubs, hoping that that will provide the extra trick when that suit breaks 3-2.

This seems like a good way of combining chances, and indeed was what the original problem setter was looking for, but can you do any better?

This line always makes when East has at least two diamonds, and also makes if the clubs are 3-2.

If you find that West has five diamonds you can still make the contract with East holding four or more clubs, as long as West does not also hold five spades.

For example, if West holds a 3451 shape when you cash four rounds of spades throwing a club, West will no doubt pitch a heart (as a diamond would be fatal). You then cash the ♣AK. West is caught – he will probably through another heart, coming down to one heart and five diamonds, in which case you case the ♥K and exit in a small diamond. West will then have to lead into your ♦Q10. If he pitches a diamond and keeps two hearts, then you simply establish the fifth diamond before cashing the ♥K, and still make the contract.

Is this the best line? The problem is reading the position. In practice many experts would take this line as they would back themselves to read the lie of the cards, but you could end up going off when West has three clubs.

Thank you very much for the entries received – there were no complete solutions this time!

Aunt Agony

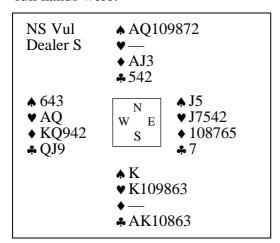

Dear Auntie,

Since moving to Yorkshire, I have really missed your wise and generous advice. Although I am so far away, could you please help me understand the bridge here? They seem to have some strange methods up north.

Take, for example, this hand from a club duplicate last night. First in hand, vulnerable against not, I picked up: ♠K ♥K109863 ♠— ♣AK10863

I opened 1♥, then round the table it went 2♦, 2♠, 3♦ to me. I thought the best thing was to show my six-card heart suit, so I bid 3♥, although with some trepidation as we seem to have a misfit and I only have 13 points. Next hand bid 4♦ and partner bid 4♠. While I was still wondering what to do, this was doubled on my right. Good news, I could pass and leave it to partner.

So we played in 4♠ doubled and I was really pleased when this made +2 for +1190, only to be bitterly disappointed when the scores showed both 6♠ and 6♠ making our way for +1430 and +1370. +1190 was not a good match point score. What did I do wrong? The full hands were:

Your loving Niece, Sheila

Dear Niece,

An interesting hand – whilst I always condemn your actions, this hand is unusual in being hard to be so uncompromisingly condemnatory to the other three players. Six-card suits were meant to be bid, and rebidding that threadbare heart suit instead of introducing the excellent club suit misled your partner both to the shape of your hand, and also its strength. With opponents bidding diamonds, there is no reason to jump to the conclusion that this is a misfit. If you had come in with 44 that might well have led to a higher contract, although I suspect some pairs may have got to the six level as a means of preventing their partners playing the contract rather than a constructive effort to bid a slam.

Thereafter your partner had a clear 4½ bid, and the double is not everyone's choice, but is known as a stripe-tailed ape — you double a game to stop opponents bidding slam. Here it is very unlikely that you were going to bid a slam anyway, so East has probably just worsened his matchpoint score — be thankful he generously donated the few you got!

Interestingly, there is also the stripetailed gorilla, where you sacrifice at a higher level than necessary in the hope that opponents think you are bidding to make. I once saw someone sacrifice over $4 \heartsuit$ with $6 \diamondsuit$, so confidently that the person who had been intending to double $4 \diamondsuit$ didn't bother doubling $6 \diamondsuit$!

All these apes and gorillas take some pulling off, and I would thoroughly recommend you, my dear niece, to simply concentrate on bidding your suits at the moment.

I do commend your pass of 4♠ though. A lesser player may have thought the spades were stacked and been tempted to pull to 5♣, which would almost certainly have led to a worse score. While the spades may indeed have been stacked, and 6♣ could be a make, it may well have not made in your hands, so it was very wise of you to leave the declaring to your partner. If you are going to manage this next time we play together, I may even not dread the evening as much as I usually do.

Your loving Aunt, Agony.

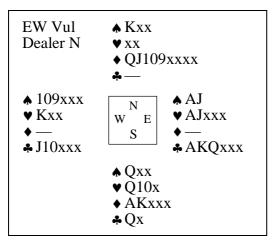

An Unusual Scenario by Chris Jagger

You have $\Delta Qxx \nabla Q10x \Delta AKxxx \Delta Qx$ and the auction starts $4 \Delta AKxxx \Delta Qx$ do you bid?

There are plenty of tactical considerations here – after getting over your initial scepticism about partner's $4 \spadesuit$ opening, do you pre-empt to the limit with $7 \spadesuit$, do a simple raise to $5 \spadesuit$, or simply raise to $6 \spadesuit$. If you do bid $6 \spadesuit$ and they bid six of a major, are you going to take the push and go on?

There is one other consideration here – did you ask what 4NT meant?

If so, you have got a better result – 4NT -5 after you cash eight rounds of diamonds. The full hand is:

So what does this sequence mean? Actually not that many people have discussed it. My tip is to play it as natural – even more important is to play 4\[Display=-2.4]-P-4NT as natural, since it is quite likely this may be the only making game contract.

Results round-up

National competitions

Paul Fegarty & Catherine Curtis won the Premier Grand Masters Pairs.

David Kendrick won the National Swiss Teams, playing with John Holland, Nicola Smith and Jeremy Dhondy.

Rod & Sue Oakford finished 2nd in the Portland Pairs.

In the Masters Pairs, Jonathan Cairns & Audrey Kueh finished 6th, just ahead of John Haslegrave & Paul Russell.

In the National Pairs Regional Final at Peterborough, Julian Wightwick & John Liebeshuetz came 2nd. Sue Oakford & Eric Campbell also qualified. At the National Final Julian & John finished 11th.

Cath & Chris Jagger, Jonathan Mestel, Julian Wightwick & Ian Pagan finished 5th in Crockfords. Robert Miller, Daniel Baines, Jim Deacon, Mark Tilley, Chris Wormleighton & Mike Trask finished 6th in Crockfords Plate.

Three Cambs & Hunts teams are through to the last 16 in the NICKO. Cambridge B (Victor Milman, Simon Barb, David Kendrick, Chris Larlham, Nadia Stelmashenko) now face Saffron Walden A (Ross Midgley, Bill Briscombe, Adam Eckersley-Waites, Peter Oxley, Chris Waites), while Cambridge A (Cath & Chris Jagger, Julian Wightwick, Jonathan Mestel, Jon Cooke) face New Amersham A. Meanwhile Peterborough B (Trevor & Marion King, Christina Brewster, Chris Heames) are through to the last 8 in the NICKO Plate.

Cambs & Hunts finished 3rd in the Tollemache Final. The team was David Kendrick, Jonathan Mestel, Jon Cooke, Chris Jagger, Paul Fegarty, Catherine Curtis, Julian Wightwick & Giles Woodruff.

The Monday event of the EBU 75th Anniversary Simultaneous Pairs was won by ex-Cambridge Club pair Sally & Philip Wraight, playing in Kendal. In the Tuesday event Jon Cooke & Catherine Curtis, playing at Cambridge, finished in 8th place. In the Wednesday event Ross Midgley & Chris Waites, playing at Saffron Walden, finished in 9th place. In the Thursday event Fred Allen & Roger Salmon, playing at the Thursday Club, finished in 22nd place.

In the EBU BfA Student Pairs Michael Du & Chris Baish finished in 8th place, and fellow Perse School players Andrew Green & Niall Davies finished in 18th place.

In the Wednesday event of the BGB Winter Pairs Bill Briscombe & Peter Oxley from Saffron Walden finished in 20th place.

In the EBU Stratified Pairs events, the Monday event was won overall by Marion & Trevor King at Peterborough. Also at that heat, in the 'C' level Karen Blacklock & John George finished 14th, and in the 'D' level Anne Wilkinson & Jan Wilson finished 8th and Sonia Winterton & Julius Dooman finished 19th. On Tuesday, Marco Golla & David Collier finished 4th overall, while Richard Earnshaw & Charlie Baylis earned themselves 3rd place at 'D'level (which equated to 11th place in the 'C' level and 16th place in the 'B' level).

County Individual

After a slight delay (the A14!) the 20 player all-play-all 38 board free-to-play final was soon on schedule, under the direction of Peter Grice. Players from six clubs and an entry field size of 153 attended: Balsham (3/26), Cambridge (2/16), Dry Drayton (4/30), Huntingdon (5/38), Peterborough (2/16), and Thursday (4/27). Scoring was facilitated by the kind loan of the Cambridge Club's BridgePad system.

Honours were well distributed:

- 1 Malcolm Anderson (Huntingdon)
- 2 Jenny Jacobsberg (Cambridge)
- 3 Trissa Orange (Balsham)
- 4 Eric Don (Peterborough)

Event organiser Paul Bond would like to thank the clubs for their support in making it such a well-attended and fun competition.
